Mr. James Alfred Jones, of counsel for the railroad company, spoke in explanation of the demurrer, and argued that the bill of complainants was imperfect and insufficient. THE LEGAL TILT. Mr. McFarland arose to address the Court. Before going into the argument he desired that the Court would fix the order of prothe gentlemen to speak. Mr. McFarland claimed in the outset that the corporation is insolvent. In his opinion the objections raised in defendant's demurrer might as well have been incorporated in the answer, but that the allegations of complainants were incontrovertible, and also because by this course his opponents could get the opening and closing of the

To the Editors of the Dispatch:

My attention has been called to the account of the proceedings in the committee on the permanent organization of the late Convention, as embodied in the proceedings of the Convention contained in your paper of the 1st instant; and as erroneous impressions might be conceived from the statement of the vote for permanent chairman, I desire to say that, by the previous request of the Hon. Thomas S. Bocock, I stated to the committee when his name was mentioned, that he did not desire the position and did not wish his name brought before the committee. This was regarded as a withdrawal of his name, and hence the smallness of the vote received by him. I will add that the committee was compelled to vote between several gentlemen, to neither of whom was there any objection; but we could not vote for all, and the vote is not to be taken as indicating any want of confidence in either of those who failed to get the nomination. J. A. EARLY. Respectfully,

A Card of Thanks.
